5 February 2016

Dear Investor,

JPMorgan Funds - Asia Pacific Income Fund (the “Sub-Fund”)

We are writing to inform you that with effect from 31 December 2015, the investment policy of the Sub-Fund has been updated to include investments in contingent convertible securities.

Contingent convertible securities are a type of investment instrument that, upon the occurrence of a predetermined event (commonly known as a “trigger event”), can be converted into shares of the issuing company. The following disclosures will be added to the Sub-Fund’s investment policy and risk profile in the Hong Kong Offering Document of JPMorgan Funds (the “Fund”) in due course.

Investment Policy:

The Sub-Fund may hold up to a maximum of 5% of its assets in contingent convertible securities.

Risk Profile:

- Contingent convertible securities are likely to be adversely impacted should specific trigger events occur (as specified in the contract terms of the issuing company). This may be as a result of the security converting to equities at a discounted share price, the value of the security being written down, temporarily or permanently, and/or coupon payments ceasing or being deferred.

This update does not alter the investment objective and policy of the Sub-Fund, and does not materially prejudice the rights or interests of shareholders of the Sub-Fund. There is no change to the fees and expenses payable by the Sub-Fund and/or the shareholders. Please refer to the Hong Kong Offering Document for further details about the Sub-Fund, including its investment policy and risk profile.

The Management Company of the Sub-Fund accepts responsibility for the accuracy of the contents of this letter.
