Reason for, and impact of, the change

We have reviewed the share classes available to investors and have decided to convert your holding to a share class which the ACD believes offers better prospects for asset growth which can lead to economies of scale with the potential for lower share class expenses.

As you meet the eligibility criteria for the C2 share classes, you will be able to purchase additional C2 shares in the JPM US Equity Income Fund and other funds where this share class is available subject to meeting the below minimum investment amount and continuing to meet the eligibility criteria.

C2 share classes may not be transferred to intermediaries or investors that do not meet the eligible investor criteria.

The number and total value of the K shares you own and the new C2 shares you receive after the conversion will be the same. The ISIN of your share class will also be the same after the conversion. Your next statement will confirm this.

These changes do not alter the way in which the fund is currently being managed, the risk profile of the fund or the fees that are charged.

Risk/reward level: Unchanged
